Research and applications on the use of massive passive data for public transport 8-9-10 July 2019. Paris, France

The use of passive data for public transport has increased in the recent years, presenting an excellent opportunity for academic research and also for the development of applied methods.

This workshop continues a series that began in Gifu, Japan (2014), Boston, United States \(2016\), Santiago, Chile \(2017\) and Brisbane, Australia \(2018\).

The focus of these meetings has been to build an international network of researchers working on these topics, and also to bring together researchers and practitioners to discuss recent methodological developments and innovative applications. We hope the TRANSITDATA2019 edition in Paris will contribute to extend the network to the european community.
